REDS NEED WATCHING

THEY PITCH THEIR TENTS AT PINE RIDGE.

They Give Up a Few Old Guns, But Have Probably Hidden Most of Their Arms—In a Good Position to Make Lots of Trouble.

CHANGED THEIR CAMP.

PINE RIDGE AGENCY, S. D., Jan. 16.—The hostiles all broke camp at an early hour and came into the agency and took the positions designated by General Miles for them. There was no demonstration. Every thing went along smoothly. They are all peaceful, but hungry. They will end the trouble.

Frank Grouard, the scout, estimates the number of lodges at 742, though he can not estimate the number of Indians. The latter can not, however, be less than 3,500. The Indian camp two miles from the agency has been broken up. General Brooke has been ordered to march with his command from below the mission to this point. A part of his command will camp on the west bank of White Clay, extending north of the Indians, while another will flank them on the west and south.

The advance guard of the hostiles had scarcely reached the agency when Big Road sent word that he had collected the arms of his followers and wanted to surrender them to the agency. When the weapons came in they were found to consist of simply two short guns, a heavy rifle and a broken carbine, two Sharp rifles and one Winchester—nine guns in all. This surrender is an evidence that the Indians do not propose to give up all their guns, and that they have hidden their best weapons. On the other hand, on this basis, the entire hostile band would be expected to give up in the neighborhood of 100 guns, when it is known that every buck is the owner of a weapon. American Horse, Standing Bear, White Bird and Spotted Horse, friendly chiefs, are now asking protection from the hostiles who have camped among them.

It is not likely that General Miles will be satisfied with the disarming of the Indians on the basis of Big Road's surrender. If he should not be, some people here consider that the difficulty is far from being settled.

In the afternoon the Braves abandoned their proposed camp near Red Cloud's house and pitched their tepees with the Ogallalas, forming a camp nearly a mile and a half in length, connecting with the friendly south of the agency. The main body of the camp extends westward from White Clay creek up the bluffs, on the summit of which the Indians have posted pickets to guard against surprise. They took possession of the bluffs just about the time the main body reached its camping ground, suddenly appearing as a deploying party, both mounted and on foot, after the most approved military fashion.

Since the surrender of Big Road of the nine rifles referred to nothing has been heard from the hostile camp. All the guns, rifles and shotguns are, however, trained in that direction, and indications of life there will be watched with interest. To-day it is expected that the other chiefs will turn over to Agent Pierce the arms of their followers, but it is doubted whether the surrender will exhaust the supply of hostiles. The Indians of Big Road have followed in the matter of giving up their miserable weapons the example of Big Foot's warriors at the time of the fight on Wounded Knee. It is doubtful whether General Miles will order a search of their tepees for more arms. There is also a certainty that he will not seek for hidden weapons in the Bad Lands or near the camp sites which the hostiles have abandoned. Such being the case, the Indians will scarcely miss the weapons which they have surrendered or will willingly surrender, knowing that they may at any time regain possession of those which they have temporarily stored away in their tepees or in the hills.

During the afternoon General Brooke, accompanied by Major Benham and Aids Truitt and Roe, came in. General Brooke called on Thursday night, and returned to his camp, which is pitched but a short distance outside the northern breastworks. His command near the mission has been divided and all of the divisions are either moving in this direction or have already arrived. General Carr reached the agency on Thursday night, with troops A, Captain Blockson; C, Captain Stanton; D, Lieutenant Scott; E, Captain Kramer; F, Captain H. Carter; G, Captain Frank West, H, Captain Wallace; I, Lieutenant Sand, and K, Captain Kerr. General Wheaton is now flanking the Indians on the west and Colonel Sanford is flanking them on the east.

It is said that the hostiles are in very bad humor. They are suspicious of the military and are exercising the same vigilance in guarding against a surprise as if they had not agreed to come in. While every thing looks like peace, the Indians have now a better position than ever before if they choose to stampede. Some of the bucks told an Indian scout that in their present place they had the agency at their mercy. This is probably bravado, pure and simple, born of the fact that being conquered they want to make a last show of spirit.

Colonel Forsythe has received a diamond-hilted sword from settlers in the vicinity of the reservation. The Colonel will not make an acknowledgment of its receipt until after the report of the investigating committee appointed to look into the Wounded Knee affair has been made public.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A telegram was received at the War Department Thursday from General Miles asking permission for a number of Sioux chiefs to visit Washington for the purpose of conferring with the President in regard to their condition. After consulting with Secretary Noble, Secretary Proctor telegraphed General Miles giving the desired permission.

In the Senate Thursday morning Senator Daves (Mass.), from the committee on Indian affairs, reported a resolution, which was referred to the committee on contingent expenses, directing an inquiry into the condition of the Indians in North and South Dakota, Montana and elsewhere, the causes leading to the occupation of Indian reservations by the troops, whether treaties with the Indians have been fulfilled; concerning arms and munitions of war in possession of the Indians; what steps are needed to disarm them; and whether the care and control of Indians living in tribal relations should be transferred to any other department of the Government.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The executive committee of the Indian Rights Association has formulated and adopted an appeal to the citizens of the country in behalf of the Indians. The appeal reviews the work that has been done among the Indians by the various denominational bodies and the causes of the present uprising among them. It declares that the most important requisite is a single, responsible, competent head for the Indian affairs, who shall report to the President directly. The Indian service should be wholly from the interference of partisan politics, and should continue its policy undisturbed by changing administrations.

The appeal also recommends that officers be detailed to serve as Indian agents and that sufficient money be appropriated by Congress to permit the education of all Indian youth and the maintenance of a thoroughly effective service.

THE SECRET OUT.

Prof. Koch Makes Known the Composition and Ingredients of His Lymph for the Cure of Consumption.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Prof. Koch's secret is out at last. The famous bacteriologist has made public in the Medical Journal the ingredients of his remedy for consumption. The doctor admits that his lymph is composed of pure generated tuberculosis bacilli in a solution of glycerine, which latter forms from 40 to 50 per cent. of the composition. The lymph, he says, is a derivation of albumen, and he acknowledges that it contains a mass of necrotic substance that attacks even certain sound tissues of the body when injected.

Prof. Koch, in his communication making known the composition of the famous curative lymph, says: "So far as I have been able to review the many statements published and communications received, my indications have been fully and completely confirmed. The general consensus of the opinions thus expressed is that the remedy has a specific effect upon the tubercular tissues and is therefore applicable as a very delicate and sure agent for the discovery of latent and the diagnosis of doubtful tubercular processes. Of the effects that result agree that many of the patients have shown more or less pronounced improvement. In a few cases even a cure has been effected."

After sufficient confirmatory testing, the importance of the remedy is proved. My next task is to extend my study of the remedy beyond the field which has hitherto been applied, and if possible to apply the principle underlying the discovery to other diseases."

Dr. Koch then gives a later technical description of his experiments leading to the perfection of the lymph, which would hardly interest the lay reader and which only a bacteriologist could fully understand.

PARNELL WILL RETIRE.

An Irish Paper Authority for an Interesting Statement.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—The Insuppressible states that the retirement of Mr. Parnell is not merely determined upon but consented to, and his voluntary abdication is being rapidly arranged. He will be in Tralee Sunday, and will doubtless refer to this matter there.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—It is rumored here that Mr. Parnell is about to retire from the contest and to surrender his leadership of the Irish party. As at present arranged the final meeting will take place in a few days when Mr. Justin McCarthy will probably be accepted as the leader of the Irish party. Mr. O'Brien, who had been thought to have succumbed to Mr. Parnell's persuasive arguments, will now, it is said, support Mr. McCarthy's election, which only needs Mr. Dillon's approval.

ENDED IN BLOODSHED.

The Row in the Colorado Legislature Leads to a Fatal Shooting.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 16.—At 10 o'clock a. m., as Police Inspector Hawley was leaving the legislature's hall, where he had been trying to quiet the mob, he was met by Harley McCoy, one of the toughest characters in the city. McCoy made some insulting remark to Hawley who turned around and replied that he had better go on or he would be arrested. McCoy without another word shot at Hawley, the ball passing through his abdomen, causing a wound which will result in his death. Police-man Morris, who came to Hawley's assistance, was shot through the shoulder. McCoy was arrested.

A Bucket-Shop Closed.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Allen & Co., bucket-shop brokers, have decided to close their business. About twenty country correspondents arrived Thursday morning, attracted by the report that the firm was in difficulty. Others came in later. Mr. Allen said: "If I had been left alone every thing would have come out all right. As it is I am compelled to close up. The losses will aggregate fully $500,000."

Failed and Skipped Out.

BRADFORD, Pa., Jan. 16.—The firm of Rich & Robinson, shoe dealers of this city, who had a branch store in Lima, O., failed three weeks ago. Their store was closed by the sheriff on judgments amounting to $9,000. It develops that the liabilities of the firm amount to $90,000 and the assets barely $10,000. Both members of the firm have disappeared, and their whereabouts are unknown.

RECKLESS EXTRAVAGANCE.

The Rash Act Prompted by a Mother's Love.

"And you are determined on this shameful extravagance, Allegretta?" demanded the husband of the world-famous soprano, as he gazed with a haggard frown into the face of the peerless soprano who stood before him with the light of a firm resolution in every lineament of her classic countenance.

"I am, Guiseppe. Consider the season. Remember a mother's love for her only child. Look at dear baby as he lies slumbering here in his little nest. Ah, Guiseppe, the mother must sometimes overcome the woman. Combat me no more. I will do it—but this once and this once only."

"Be it so, then," assented her husband, sadly; "but breathe no word of your weakness to any human being, or your name will be a by-word among lyric artists."

"You can trust me, Guiseppe," proudly returned the diva, and bending softly over the cot, she sang a $1,000 lullaby to the dreaming infant.

"Allegretta," groaned her husband, "this extravagance breaks my heart!" and with a heavy sigh he resumed his monotonous occupation of passing Government bonds through a patent coupon-mill. (Detroit Free Press.)

FARWELL IS DEFEATED

EX-GOVERNOR OGLESBY HONORED IN ILLINOIS.

The Caucus Nominates Him for Senator Farwell's Seat—Senator Farwell's Failure to Secure a Renomination in New Hampshire.

THE PENNSYLVANIA SENATORSHIP.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 16.—The Republican Senatorial caucus on Thursday night nominated General R. J. Oglesby to succeed Senator Farwell. Every Republican member of the Senate and House was present. There were no nominating speeches. The agricultural men held the reins from start to finish and named their favorite with 64 out of 100 votes on the first formal ballot. A resolution was adopted in which places the nominating in the hands of the "steering" committee of the Republican party in the Legislature, and it is given power to withdraw his name whenever in their judgment the interests of the Republican party demand it. An informal secret ballot was taken which resulted as follows: Oglesby, 48; Farwell, 32; Gresham, 11; Lindley, 3; McNulta, 3; Ross, 2; and Hamer, 1. The formal ballot, which was also secret, resulted as follows: Oglesby, 64; Farwell, 29; Gresham, 4; Ross, 1; Hamer, 1. The nomination of Oglesby was made unanimous.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 16.—The Republican caucus to nominate a United States Senator to succeed Senator Blair was held Thursday night. Nominating speeches were dispensed with and the caucus at once proceeded to ballot with the following result on second ballot: Briggs, 1; Burns, 4; Cheney, 15; Blair, 48; Jacob B. Gallinger, 120. Mr. Gallinger was declared nominated. Senator Blair's term expires March 4 next. A ballot will be taken in each branch of the Legislature on Tuesday.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—In accordance with the usual custom both branches of the State Legislature Thursday proceeded to the nomination of candidates for the United States Senatorship, the balloting for which will take place on the 30th inst. In the Senate, J. Donnell, of Delaware, the present incumbent, was the only nominee on the Republican side. The Democrats placed in nomination State Senator Ross, of Bucks County, and Hon. Chauncey F. Black, of York County. In the House, after Cameron, Ross and Black had been nominated, Mr. Maguire (Rep.), of Delaware County, named Austin L. Taggart, of Montgomery County.

OHIO GAS-FIELDS GIVE OUT.

Six Thousand Fires Go Out in Columbus—Big Demand for Coal.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—Columbus is without a single natural-gas fire and numerous cases of great inconvenience are reported on account of the sudden cut-off of the supply. The flow was stopped at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning and 6,000 fires went out. The company says that in all probability the gas will never be turned on again, as the supply will not be sufficient for practical use. In speaking of the value of the plant of the company the superintendent said he did not regard it as worth one dollar at the present meter rate for gas. The company has planted in the streets of Columbus and the pipe lines to the gas-fields $1,100,000, but this can not be made to yield a revenue to the operators at the present rates. They control lands in the gas-fields in the direction of Lancaster and Newark in which wells have not been sunk, and this will not be developed until some change is made. The failure of the supply of natural gas proved to be a bonanza for the coal-dealers of the city. The morning after 6,000 fires went out, the dealers were compelled to put on extra teams and wagons, and then the demand could not be easily supplied.

A POST-OFFICE ROBBERED.

Burglars Blow Open the Safe of the Old Key West, Fla., Securing a Large Sum.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 16.—A special from Key West to the Times-Union says that the safe in the post-office there was blown open by thieves early Wednesday morning and $2,300 in money, stamps and other valuables were taken. The contents of twenty-four registered letters, H. L. Hafer, of Barnwell, S. C., by trade a baker, has been arrested on suspicion. His chum, John Cline, is missing. The amount of money in the registered letters is supposed to be large.

THOUSANDS DYING.

A Terrible Epidemic Raging in Parts of Siberia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 16.—A dispatch from Tobolsk says that the terrible plague known as "black death," has reached the city of Tobolsk, the capital of West Siberia. The whole of Asiatic Russia, from Samarkand to the mouth of the Obi, is suffering from the scourge. Thousands are dying at Obdorsk, near the mouth of the Obi, owing to the lack of physicians. It seems almost hopeless to try and check the spread of the fearful disease.

GOVERNOR PECK'S MESSAGE.

There are some points in the message delivered by Governor Peck to the legislature on Thursday to which no person of fair understanding can take exception.

All that part of the document which argues a brief season of the legislature, an economical expenditure of money, a cutting down of the number of employees in and about both houses, abolishing useless boards and officers, and the like, will receive the endorsement of all intelligent citizens.

If the legislature shall enact a law making the state responsible for the safe-keeping of moneys deposited in national banks, there is no good reason why the interest on such deposit should not revert to the treasury.

In the messages will be found this paragraph:

Another practice has added to the difficulty mentioned. This is the payment in advance, quarterly, of the regular annual appropriations for the maintenance of the various public institutions which derive support from the state. This money should remain in the treasury to be disbursed as needs require.

The general fund, by these methods, can be kept at all times adequate to the demands made upon it, instead of being periodically largely overdrawn, because moneys not yet actually expended have been paid out in advance of necessity, and often, perhaps, for the mere convenience or advantage of special treasurers.

This paragraph needs contradiction. The board having in charge the expenditures of money on account of the various public institutions does not draw from the treasury quarterly in advance any money which has been appropriated for their support. An estimate is made every month of the expenditures for the public institutions for the following month, and the secretary of state draws his warrant on the state treasury for the amount. This is a plain, practical, business-like method, and the convenience or advantage of no "special treasurers" is ever taken into account.

Governor Peck makes one recommendation which should meet with the hearty approval of all who have the interests of the state at heart. He recommends the abolition of both the state board of supervision and the state board of charities. Practically, there is a need of but one board, and a new one organized out of the remains of the old boards or composed of the right kind of new material, will serve the state sufficiently well.

There are other recommendations in the message which need no special notice. Every observing and fair-minded man can judge for himself as to the wisdom of the points which the governor makes in regard to state affairs. On the whole it will be warmly commended by his political friends, and there is not much in it which republicans can condemn, excepting, of course, his comments on the Bennett law.

ENGLAND SEEKS PROTECTION.

The theory of free trade has very aptly been pronounced "a science based on assumptions." The correctness of this diagnosis finds confirmation in the nervousness of the average free trade advocate when confronted by the cold facts of history and business experience.

No country has ever succeeded in attaining national prominence in the absence of a rigid regard for the defense of those industries rendered precarious by reason of natural resources and the ability of its people to make and keep themselves in most part independent of business rivals in other countries.

England is at once the inspiration of free trade evangelism in the United States and the model to which free trade advocates invariably point as their ideal of economic government. Yet, within recollection of men now living, when modifying its policy, the British Parliament repealed a code of laws, certain provisions of which would make the protective features of our present tariff seem the extreme of conservatism. It was not until after three centuries of protection, and when confronted with the fact that British commerce could no longer meet the demand for bread and meat for British tables, that parliament ventured to repeal the corn laws and to remove the barriers of defense from about those products of manufacture that rigid protection had brought to a then unparalleled perfection.

This chapter of British history, though so rigidly excluded from the speeches of those who are seeking to Anglicize the policy of this country, one that the patriotic student of the situation cannot afford.

Another form of British protection is now claiming attention of our minister to England. Representatives of the department of agriculture have for some months been in England under instructions to minimize the expense and embarrassments involved in the American live stock under an assumed fear of contagious diseases, but in reality to ally the rootlessness of British farmers and stock raisers over American competition.

Great Britain has ever been prompt to handpick foreign competition when its freedom was likely to operate to the pecuniary disadvantage of her subjects.

The pressure for free trade with this country is no exception to this rule of national selfishness, and will be reversed as readily as the charge from protection was made whenever British interests seem to require such a step.

Judging from newspaper accounts the Dempsey-Fitzsimmons mill in New Orleans was as brutal and disgusting an affair as was ever chronicled before the days of "five ounce gloves" and other pugilistic refinements. According to the enthusiastic correspondents: "Round after round was pure butchery, the like of which has not been seen in glove contests." In the eleventh round Dempsey was knocked down seven times, but although blinded by his own blood, declined to give in until the thirteenth round, when he was knocked unconscious. The police stood by and watched all this without interfering.

Sickless Simpson declines to become a victim to the sock habit. But Mr. Simpson is inconsistent. Carried to its logical conclusion, the advent of Mr. Simpson in the United States senate would present a decidedly classical and statuesque figure among his colleagues.

General Miles treating under the most ambiguous instructions ever yet received by a commander in the field. It is understood to be the policy of the administration to put as many Indians to death as possible without killing them.

ILLINOIS.

Both Houses of the State Legislature held short sessions and adjourned.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 15.—In the House Thursday the report of the joint committee on rules was submitted and unanimously adopted. The roll was called for and the introduction of bills and various measures presented and referred. Moore, the F. M. R. A. member, introduced a resolution providing that the rules be suspended, and Thursday, February 12, be set apart as women's day, and that Mrs. Helen M. Gougar and others be invited to the house on behalf of woman suffrage. Yeas and nays were demanded and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 100 yeas to 30 nays.

In the Senate Senator Shumway introduced a bill to correct certain practices of employers by providing a penalty for arbitrary and capricious dismissal of candidates to render to the county clerk a sworn statement of all their expenditures during the campaign. Voting for United States Senator was made the special order for next Tuesday at 10:15 o'clock by a party vote of 27 to 24.

Senator Farmer introduced a resolution directing the Attorney-General to inform the Senate if the Auditor had a right to accept more than $3,500 annually as fees or salary. Referred to judiciary committee by party vote—27 to 22. Among the bills introduced were the following:

Providing a penalty for obstructing streams by throwing timber, etc., thereon; requiring persons engaged in making abstracts of title to give bonds for the faithful performance of their duties, and makes abstracts prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated; making the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the State University regents a board who shall have school books used in the State furnished on contract and given to pupils at absolute cost; appropriating $500 for the State Horticultural Society; providing for the placing of the American flag on public school buildings, the expense thereof to be borne by the school board.

MICHIGAN.

Measures Introduced in Both Branches of the Legislature.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15.—Speaker Wachtel Thursday morning announced a standing committee of the House composed of one from each Congressional district, seven Democrats and four Republicans, to whom all matters referring to a rearranging of the Congressional and Representative districts will go. A bill was introduced fixing the legal rate of interest at 5 per cent, which may be increased by contract to 7. Two local bills of minor importance passed under suspension of the rules and were given immediate effect.

In the Senate a bill was introduced creating the Thirtieth judicial circuit by dividing the State into three parts.

The recommendation contained in the Governor's message was referred to the several committees. The resolution for "investigation in the contest for the seats of Senators Horton and Morse" was taken from the table and passed.

Bills were introduced as follows:

To establish a State fish hatchery in the Upper Peninsula; charging a traveling fee for returning legal processes by mail, and to establish a legal mailing fee thereon; making an appropriation for the support of the Michigan Mining school; exempting soldiers and sailors from the war of the rebellion from poll tax; to prohibit holding more than one township office by the same individual; to regulate the making of abstracts of title and fixing compensation therefor.

He Yelled Kemp's Balm.

I yell "Take Kemp's Balm, the best cough cure." I always do when I hear a man cough, and I can't help it. It saved me and it will cure you. I was threatened with pneumonia last winter and it broke it up. It helps the children when their throats are sore, cures their coughs, and tastes so good. The first dose I gave my son, writes A. R. ## WORK DONE IN CONGRESS.

Senator Morgan Twists the Tail of the British Lion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the Senate Thursday Senator Morgan (Ala.) offered a preamble and concurrent resolution on the subject of the recent information or suggestion for a writ of prohibition in the Supreme Court in connection with the Behring sea dispute with Great Britain. The resolution declares such proceeding to be without precedent, to be prejudicial to the comity of nations and to the usual and amicable conduct of international relations and not to be in conformity with the dignity of the Government and people or with the respect due to the President of the United States. Referred.

The Senate passed a bill to credit O. M. Laraway, late postmaster of Minneapolis, with $11,115, the value of postage stamps stolen from his office in July, 1888.

A bill was introduced to provide for a settlement between the United States and the Central and Union Pacific and certain other railway corporations which have received bonds from the Government to aid in the construction of their roads.

The bill directs the Attorney-General to commence proceedings against these corporations, and authorizes the President to detail three army officers as a board of appraisers to fix the value of all property belonging to these roads. The Attorney-General is also to institute proceedings against the corporations to forfeit their charters and other privileges conferred by the Government. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to advance within thirty days after the investment of the property to the lease for fifty years of all the railways with their appurtenances and stock, no bill to be considered for an annual rental of less than $100,000.

The elections bill was taken up and Senator Everts (N. Y.) spoke for nearly four hours in favor of it. Senator Pasco (Ia.) obtained the floor and the bill was laid aside informally.

Senator Hoar (Mass.) gave notice that to-day he should ask the Senate to remain in session until the bill was finished.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the House Thursday Mr. Milliken (Me.) submitted reports on the bill providing for the erection of buildings at Sioux Falls, S. D., and Portland, Ore., which were agreed to. The conference report on the Mankato (Minn.) bill was after debate agreed to.

A message from the Senate was received announcing the passage of the financial bill with a free-coinage substitute. The reception of this message by the Democratic side was cordial and effusive, and Mr. Bland (Mo.) expressed the hope that early action would be had upon the measure. The bill went to the Speaker's table.

The Speaker announced the appointment of a committee to investigate the silver-pool question.

CHAPTER VIII.

With all his soldierly qualifications, Col. Morris, like most of his sex, had certain defects of character. He was a tireless worker as a regimental commander, and had done a great deal to bring up the "tone" of the Eleventh, which had suffered vastly during the reign of old Briggs, his predecessor. He had won a good name as a young officer in the war days, and had borne himself well in the more trying and hazardous campaigns of the far frontier. But Morris, both during the war and since, had seen staff duty that had brought him into social and political circles in Washington; had learned there the lesson that pure politics is worth a pound of pure record; that in most matters affecting army legislation it was the men who were the farthest away from the army whose opinions congress sought; that in all appointments to the staff departments personal and professional excellence might plead in vain unless backed by senators by the score; and that while judicious use of the gifts that God had put in his hand in the shape of the public press might result in the gradual rearing of a monument of popular esteem, a single ungoverned word or petulant expression would tumble the whole fabric about his ears.

He had seen the highest names in legislative, financial and social circles dragged in the dust; the head of the house of representatives dethroned; a Wall Street monarch excommunicated; a gallant soldier, named in battle, ridiculed. In combined and resistless assault the press had overwhelmed the record of years. Morris had faced death in a dozen fields without a flinch, but he trembled in the presence of a reporter.

Nervous, irritable, and unstrung, he called his officers about him on the following day. General morning was still in progress; the land was playing twenty on the grassy parade; the ringing voice of the soldierly young adjutant swung the column around in its jaunty march in review. One after another the troop and company officers came quietly in, bade their flushed commander a courteous good morning, and took their seats. He was pacing the floor, tugging at his mustache, another telegram in his hand.

"Where's Dr. Ingersoll?" he asked, suddenly stopping in his walk.

"Here, colonel," said the port surgeon, stepping within the office from the brick pavement outside. "I was waiting a moment to see the steward, to give some directions as to Dr. Bent's case."

"Ah, yes. He's better, I believe. Now, I see you have marked Welsh for duty, and the man tells me he couldn't sleep all night because of pains and chills."

"Welsh is as well as I am, Col. Morris, or if I had only myself to blame. He knows as well as I do that he has no business to go to the store and drink when under treatment and taking medicine. It is my firm conviction, sir, that that man is simply trying to shirk."

"Col. Morris, I presume,"

"Well, well, Dr. Ingersoll, it is a matter in which we cannot be too careful. You haven't the faintest conception, sir, to what this most unfortunate affair may lead. It is infinitely better that we should be imposed upon by a shirk than that the public should look to expectant mothers, say a child."

seems to have infuriated the man, and what has given rise to all this uproar of the press, is the fact that Mr. Hearn, as they say, dragged him out. Of course that may be exaggerated.

"It's all right," muttered old Kenyon, under his breath. "But all the more it goes."

"I do not wish to be unjust to Mr. Hearn in this matter," continued the colonel. "But I cannot too strongly deplore the consequences of his—of his action. And then in threatening to expel civilians from the garrison! What earthly right had you, Mr. Hearn, to arrogate to yourself the faculties of commanding officer? I am the only man to say who shall and who shall not be kept on or off the reservation. And now, of all men on earth that you young gentlemen should have been particularly careful not to antagonize it, turns out that one of them is a representative of the press."

And in the full realization of a circumstance, the colonel's face sank into his chair. Hearn would have explained that he had made no personal threats, but Hearn's restraining hand was laid on his knee.

"Patience, lad," he whispered. "Say nothing now. It will all come right in the end."

"I'm sure I took the utmost pains to be civil to the gentlemen," drawled Martin, with his innocent eye on the vacancy of the opposite walls. "I implored Stone not to eject them. I had to beg off drinking with the—Israel—British party because I had to shoot. Of course, colonel, if I had known that the other gentleman was so highly connected, there's no saying to what length I would have gone to attain the elevation they had already reached—one of them at least. A dozen drinks, I think, might have done it."

"This is no occasion for the exercise of your sarcastic powers, Mr. Martin," said the colonel severely. "It is to be hoped your civility was less transparent a sham than your present remarks."

"Pardon me, colonel," interposed Lieut. Lee, whose seat was near the window. "Here comes the gentleman himself."

Surely enough, a buggy drew up in front of the office, a bulky form slowly descended, and with much deliberation of manner Mr. Abrams, of Chicago, looked about him, then proceeded to tie his horse to a young maple at the edge of the walk. The orderly sprang forward.

"Beg pardon, sir, but it's against orders to tie the horses to the trees. The horse posts are across the road."

"Against those orders?" said the gentleman from Chicago, with slow and impressive movement, turning upon the trim soldier.

"The colonel's orders, sir. Even the officers can't leave their horses in front of headquarters, sir."

"My God! Here! This will never do! I digested the colonel, springing to his feet. "Mr. Adjutant, send a man out here."

"Shall I take care of the gentleman's horse?" said Martin with grave humility when, rising slowly to his feet, as the colonel strode to the door. But Morris was too hurried to hear him, or even to rebuke the titter with which the words were greeted. By this time, paying no attention to the orderly, the representative of The Palladium had reached the doorway and was brought face to face with the post commander.

"Col. Morris, I presume. I am the bearer of an order to you from department headquarters."

"Col. Morris, sir, at your service," replied the post commander with much suavity. "A letter, I presume. Walk in Mr.—Mr.—Take a chair, sir."

Several of the officers nearest the door had risen promptly, as though in readiness to receive with due honors the colonel's guest. Others slowly followed their example. Some remained seated and continued a low toned chat. All gradually resumed their seats, and while some with evident curiosity studied the appearance of the stranger, Brodie and Lee looked at him with eyes that plainly spoke their resentment, while Hearn's hands were clenched and his lips compressed. No word was spoken to the new arrival, however. He, with entire indifference of manner as to all the rest, fixed his gaze upon the commanding officer, who rapidly read. The note was short and to the point. Morris had reason to be thankful for his diplomatic training.

"I am greatly pleased to give you welcome, Mr. Abrams," he said, extending his hand with much apparent cordiality of manner. "This, while by no means necessary, of course adds to the readiness with which we open our doors to you. Had I known you were here and desirous of visiting the post for any purpose in the interests of your paper, I should have found means to welcome you before, and am only sorry you did not make your presence known to me."

Maj. Kenyon had risen as the colonel was speaking, and now in low tone and with much respect of manner accosted him:

"By your leave, colonel, if there be nothing further in the way of business, may I request your permission to retire?"

"Certainly, Maj. Kenyon. And, gentlemen, there were some matters to which I desired to call your attention, but it is so near time for 'boots and saddles,' we will defer the matter until tomorrow. I will not detain you further."

There were one or two among the score of officers present who desired to see the colonel on some routine matters; these contented themselves with going over to the adjutant's desk, as he entered, and whispering their request to him; the others promptly took their leave and sauntered out into the sunshine. Mr. Abrams noted the occurrence with a quiet but suggestive smile.

For a moment no one among the little group seemed to find anything to say. It was Mr. Lee who gave the first expression to personal opinion. He burst out into a fit of laughter.

"I'm blessed if I can see anything to laugh about in this affair, Mr. Lee," said the major, whose face was a shade moodier than ever. "If anything was needed to confirm what I have hitherto said on the subject, here you have it. Perhaps it pleases you to see a comrade vilified by the press and then bulldozed by his commanding officer, who well knows the paper lies and doesn't stand up for the fellow's impudence, announcing himself as the bearer of an order from headquarters! If I had been in command I should have told him—"

"Never mind, Capt. Brodie. What seems to have infuriated the man, and what has given rise to all this uproar of the press, is the fact that Mr. Hearn, as they say, dragged him out. Of course that may be exaggerated."

"It's all right," muttered old Kenyon, under his breath. "But all the more it goes."

"I do not wish to be unjust to Mr. Hearn in this matter," continued the colonel. "But I cannot too strongly deplore the consequences of his—of his action. "Patience, lad," he whispered. "Say nothing now. It will all come right in the end."

Just Missed Fortune.

In 1847 Admiral Cochrane, one of the heroes of the English navy, obtained from the government a perpetual lease of the pitch lake of Trinidad at nominal figures, but as the value of the pitch was then little known Cochrane was so indifferent to his bonanza as to allow it to revert to the government.

The lake is now leased to a firm for a period of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $48,000. Its area is about ninety acres, and Hum-boldt believed that the supply is inexhaustible. Had the importance of its product been known, as it is now, in the manufacture of Trinidad asphaltum, Cochrane's family would be the richest in the ranks of the Scotch nobility.—Pittsburg Times.

"Good morning, children," said a suburban doctor as he met three or four little children on their way to school, "and how are you this morning?"

"We don't tell you," replied the eldest, a boy of 8.

"Dare not tell me?" exclaimed the doctor; "and why not?"

"'Cause papa said that last year it cost him over $20 to have you come in and ask us how we were."—London Tit-Bits.

Disorders Which Effect the Kidneys. Are among the most formidable known. Diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel and other complaints of the urinary organs are not ordinarily cured in severe cases, but they may be averted by timely medical aid. A useful stimulant of the urinary glands has been found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which not only affords a requisite stimulus when they become inactive, but increases their vigor and secretory power. By increasing the activity of the kidneys and bladder, this medicine has the additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of those organs to eliminate and pass off. The Bitters is also a purifier and strengtheners of the bowels, and increases the activity of the liver and stomach. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

Cataract in Colorado. I used Ely's Cream Balm for dry cataract. It proved a cure.—B. F. M. Weeks, Denver.

Ely's Cream Balm is especially adapted as a remedy for cataract which is aggravated by a cold in the head and eyes. W. A. Hoover, druggist, Denver.

I can recommend Ely's Cream Balm to all sufferers from dry cataract from personal experience.—Michael Herr, pharmacist, Denver.

Ely's Cream Balm has cured many cases of cataract. It is in constant demand.—George W. Hoyt, Pharmacist, Cheyenne, Wyo.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS. For faded green blinds rub on a little linseed oil.

Exp stains can be removed by rubbing them with common table salt.

To freshen leather chairs, valises, bags, etc., rub them with the well beaten white of an egg.

Ask Your Friends About It. Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. It is remarkable also has been found to be the genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50 c and $1 at all druggists. Sample bottle free.

WHY CAMILLE SOBBED

ROMANCE REVEALED ON THE MYERS HOUSE STAGE.

Architect Cobb's Chance Words Bring Out the Story of a Young Actress' Flight from Home and Her Fight with the Cruel World.

Tears gushed from pretty Camille Cleveland's blue eyes, as she stood behind the scenes at the opera house Wednesday night.

Her pretty head was bowed, and her whole frame shook with suppressed emotion as Architect Cobb paid his tribute to the actors and actresses.

Mr. Cobb said in his remark: "You little realize the hardships and nervous headaches which over-burdened anxiety produces. Storm-tossed upon the sea of life, with generous impulses and a burning ambition possibly bitter poverty and fight, no hearts beat higher or nobler than theirs."

These sentences were doubly significant to Miss Cleveland.

People who saw her take her part little thought of what was going through her mind. They little realized that with each puff of her cigarette, tears coursed down her cheeks. When her voice broke while singing her solo it was not because she was suffering from a sore throat, but because her heart had been touched in a tender spot by the feeling words of Mr. Cobb.

Eight years ago Camille, then a yellow-haired little girl of the mature age of eleven years, ran away from her home in San Francisco, and joined a theatre company. Her parents were heart-broken, and knew not where their daughter had gone. Then came weeks of weary searching; and telegraphing by broken-hearted parents. No trace of the missing child was found. She had dropped completely from sight, and the sorrowing parents sadly gave up the search.

Some weeks after, one of Uncle Sam's mail carriers left a test-stained envelope at the California home of the pretty little actress. The parents were overcome with joy when they found that it was from their daughter. It was postmarked Cincinnati, and implored their forgiveness. Camille was then traveling with a company and was in love with her profession.

They wrote her to come home but the company had left Cincinnati and the letter never reached her. This made a misunderstanding, and the daughter thought that her parents had given her up.

But such was not the case.

They searched as before, and finally found the daughter. By this time, however, she had gained such prominence in her profession, and leaving the stage was something she could not be induced to consider. It is not hard to understand that the feeling words of Mr. Cobb had awakened the memories of her parent's pleadings. Father and mother were devoted to her, and one of their letters, reaching her just before the play, made the effect of Mr. Cobb's speech doubly strong.

WRECKED TRUNKS AND SMILED.

Yellow-Haired Willie Gets Information Regarding a Baggage Man.

At all men leading a flaxen-haired little boy got off a train at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot this morning. The youngster had evidently been taking his first ride on the cars, and was thirsting for information.

"Papa," said he, "what is that man doing, that wears that coat with gold buttons?" pointing to a conductor.

"He's the man that runs the train and takes the tickets."

"Does he keep them himself?"

"Sometimes—that is, he keeps them until he gets to the end of his run."

"Does the conductor own the cars?"

"No. Some of them think they do."

"What makes them think so?"

"Don't ask so many questions, Willie."

"Yes, papa; but what does that man in the car throw those boxes for?"

"He's trying to break them open."

"Just then a grip came open, and the little boy saw the hair-brush and soiled collars dropping between the rails."

"There, pa, he broke one open; is he happy now?"

"Yes, my son."

The boy was still for a few minutes and then said:

"Pa; are you sure he is happy?"

"Of course, Willie. Be still."

"All right, Pa; but the other day when you threw things around like that, you said that was a disgusting brute and then you talked to her and she hit you with the broom, and you didn't come home until the next morning. You couldn't hardly wait. Then you fell down cellar and said that they'd got you, and wanted someone to kill 'em. Ma told Mr. Jones that you had the crypsies, and was sick and bad. Was you happy?" but the story was never finished, for a tall man carrying a flaxen-haired boy who kicked and struggled in his arms, climbed aboard the train mumbled to himself something about "darned cubs who talked too much."

HURRYING IN WITH THE LEAF.

Tobacco Growers Causing Warehouses To Overflow—Much Good Leaf.

Tobacco growers are delivering the '00 crop at local warehouses faster than was anticipated by the purchasers one week ago. Some of the warehouses are now well filled, and large forces of sorters are at work sorting and casing the weed.

The sorters report that the crop is turning out fully as well, if not a little better, than the estimate placed on it at the time of purchase a few weeks ago. It is seldom a crop is found which falls below the estimate. There is considerable tobacco yet unsold in the hands of the growers, and the prices remain about the same—8 and 10 cents.

WILL BE NOTICE FAMINE.

Janeville to be Well Supplied With Cooling Crystal.

Janeville ice men are now harvesting some of the finest ice ever seen on Rock River. While it is not as thick as in some seasons, it is clear as crystal, and generally free of snow and dirt caused by overflow. There will be no necessity for an ice famine in Janeville the coming season.

PULLED OFF MASHED FINGERS.

Bloody Contents of Brakeman Charles Krue's Wrist Mitten.

Mangled ends of three fingers and the thumb, dropped to the ground when Charles Krue pulled off his mitten in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul yards this morning.

Young Krue has been running on Conductor Lee's train as a brakeman. This morning he was coupling the engine to a moving car, when the car struck the balance of the train and stopped suddenly, his hand catching between the bumpers.

Dr. J. B. Whiting and Dr. Joe Whiting attended him. Young Krue had the position formerly held by his step-brother, the late Sherman Robbins, who was ground to death before the eyes of several hundred people at Beloit some time ago.

WILL FORM A LEAGUE.

Base Ball Organizers Begin Their Work in Janeville.

"Will Janeville be in the state base ball league?" That is the question that is prominent in the minds of local enthusiasts. Harry T. Smith, the originator of the state league scheme, is in the city making arrangements to have a club in Janeville. The new league will consist of Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Racine, Waukesha, Marinette, Oconto, Appleton and Janesville. The salary limit will be $600 a month, that being the greatest aggregate of salaries paid to any entire team. The players will sign under the rule of the National League. Mr. Smith is well known as a base ball man, and has organized a number of state leagues.

FEW OPERATORS OUT.

Janesville Telegraphers Decide To Keep Out of Trouble.

Telegraph operators are at a premium on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road. The strike has not affected the company's business to any noticeable degree, however, and those who are on the inside predict a failure of the strikers. Two old men who had left their offices were requested by the company to go back to work last night and did so. The night operator at Beloit was the only man near Janeville who has left his desk. His place was immediately filled. The operators are all interested in the outcome of the strike, and are patiently awaiting developments.

FELT A NEED OF BEER.

Reasons of Cronin and Holmes For Kicking In Doors.

George W. Benicke made a complaint against John Cronin and James Holmes in the municipal court this morning, charging them with kicking in his front door. Benicke lives at 412 Pleasant street, and says at two o'clock this morning Holmes and Cronin came to his house and tried to borrow a pitcher with which to "rush the can," as he expressed it.

He refused to lend, and they retaliated by kicking in the door and applying vile epithets to himself and wife.

HOURS PLEASANTLY PASSED.

Young People Entertained by Mrs. Fethers in Honor of a Guest.

A company of forty young people were entertained by Mrs. Ogden H. Fethers last evening in honor of her guest, Miss Jenny Kempton, of Chicago. For a few hours the parlors of Mr. and Mrs. Fethers' handsome first street residence were devoted to progressive euchre. Refreshments were then served, and later in the evening the company had the pleasure of listening to songs by Miss Kempton, who possesses a soprano voice of remarkable range and exceptional cultivation.

SEEKS SCHOOL HOUSE PLANS.

The board of education have instructed the clerk to solicit plans and specifications for the contemplated new school buildings. Clerk Burham is preparing a circular letter containing all the desired information, and when printed, a copy will be sent to several leading architects, asking for plans and specifications. He hopes to have these plans ready to submit to the board at the next regular meeting, which will be on the first Monday in February.

The members of Washington Camp No. 1, Patriotic Order Sons of America, will give a social dancing party at Liberty Hall on Saturday evening. Friends of the order are cordially invited to attend.

At 8 o'clock to-night all Janesville will gather around the Myers House tables. And in this case, it is announced, so'clock means eight o'clock exactly, not half past.

H. M. Weaver's forty-eighth birthday was pleasantly marked last evening by a surprise party arranged by Mr. Weaver's friends. Several hours were very pleasantly spent, and during the evening Mr. Weaver was presented with a handsome easy chair, and several other tokens of regard.

That was a merry party of young people at the home of Mrs. Fred Koehlin, 290 South Main street last evening. The young people in good numbers planned and successfully carried out a surprise party on her son, John, whose birthday anniversary they proposed to commemorate. The party was hospitably entertained and the evening was filled with merry making, music and singing.

J. D. REXFORD RESIGNS.

L. B. CARLE PRESIDENT OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

After Twenty-Six Years' Service President Rexford Declines a Re-election, and Directors of the Bank in Annual Session Name Officers.

J. D. Rexford, who has held the office of president of the First National Bank for twenty-six years, to-day declined a re-election.

Mr. Rexford commenced his banking career in Janesville over a quarter of a century ago, being connected with the Central Bank of Wisconsin, which was reorganized under the national banking law, and took the name of the First National Bank of Janesville. He has always been looked upon as one of the city's ablest and safest financiers, and his counsel has been highly valued by those having funds to invest. Through his and his colleagues' able management, the First National Bank now stands as one of the soundest banking institutions in the west.

Strong efforts were made to induce Mr. Rexford to reconsider his decision, but he steadfastly refused. At the meeting of directors this morning L. B. Carle was elected president and John G. Rexford, cashier.

J. L. Croft was appointed teller and H. D. Murdoch first book-keeper.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the bank, held on the 13th inst., a board of directors were elected consisting of J. D. Rexford, F. B. Eldred, H. Richardson, Cyrus Miner A. P. Lovel, J. C. Conrad and L. B. Carle.

WANTS LENT IN ALL CHURCHES.

Frances Willard Writes to Janesville Friends Urging Self Denial.

Much that Lent implies is suggested by Frances Willard in a recent letter to Janesville friends. Miss Willard says: "Will you join me in the following resolve, viz: Beginning with the 22d of February, the birthday of the father of his country, and for ten days thereafter I will, as a Christian patriot, deny myself some luxury in food, clothing, surroundings or opportunities, and contribute the amount thus saved to a self-denial fund for the treasury of the National W. O. T. U., to help in its beneficent undertakings for the year 1891."

I suppose that fruit, flowers, confectionary, attendance upon lectures, concerts, extra ribbons and gloves, would naturally be included in such an estimate. Undoubtedly we are all giving from one-tenth to one-fourth or one-third, possibly some of us one-half, of our income already to the white-ribbon cause; but this special effort is suggested in view of the losses we have recently sustained, and of which we are fully aware.

WILL TROT HERE IN JUNE.

Dates for the Driving Park Meeting Practically Settled.

Local horsemen were in Rockford to-day conferring with horsemen from Illinois and Wisconsin cities regarding a June trotting circuit. It had been intended to make the circuit this year include Aurora and several other Illinois cities that have heretofore had meeting of less importance, but these cities have banded together in an Illinois circuit. Janesville's meeting this year will be held June 16-19. The other cities on the circuit will be Elgin, Freeport and Rockford, and the dates, unless rearranged later, will be:

Elgin, June 2-5.

Rockford, June 9-12.

Janeville, June 16-19.

Freeport, June 23-26.

From Freeport the horses will go to Independence, Iowa.

NEED NOT HAVE ASSIGNED.

Freeman Arnold Said to be in Fair Financial Condition.

Very little was new regarding the failure of Freeman Arnold, of Hanover developed to-day.

"There was really no necessity for the failure," said W. F. Williams, the assignee. "He has some twenty thousand dollars in assets, and only about ten or eleven thousand liabilities. Or the unsecured liabilities there is only about twelve hundred dollars. And Arnold has over three thousand dollars worth of personal property right in Hanover, unencumbered. No. There was no necessity for the assignment, and I cannot explain now why he took such a course."

MAY LOCATE IN JANEVILLE.

Professor C. E. Gordon Plans for a Janesville City Class in Vocal Music.

C. E. Gordon contemplates locating in Janesville, and giving his entire time to teaching vocal music. Mr. Gordon considers this one of the best towns he has been in, and feels confident that he will be able in a short time to obtain enough private pupils to enable him to locate here. He has a thoroughly cultivated baritone voice, possesses the Italian art of singing, and is able to make it clear to a pupil, and gives those who study the correct way of vocalization.

Professor Gordon's prices are moderate, compared to others who teach vocal music. For a few weeks his study will be in the Court Street church block, and will be open evenings until 9 o'clock.

THIEVES ARE OF GOOD FAMILY.

Bee Stealers Caught, and Found To be of Respectable Connection.

Bee thieves are still causing much loss north of this city. Nathan Smith makes an announcement as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that the persons who demoralized my apiary have been located, legal action demanded, and the reward claimed; but in consideration of the respectability of their kindred I propose to give them two weeks from the date of this paper in which to call and settle, after which, in case of their non-appearance, prompt and vigorous legal measures will follow."

NEARLY READY TO BE "OLD PROB."

E. B. Heimstret Secures Instruments for a Signal Service Station.

Signal Officer E. B. Heimstret is patiently waiting the arrival of his instruments that he may have the local weather bureau in working order and publish daily bulletins. A portion of the apparatus has been received, but it is not deemed advisable to publish reports until all the instruments are put in position and the record made complete and perfect.

BOTHER FOR LOCAL BRAWLS.

A New Puzzle Fling Favors in the Bower City.

If the sample shown to Janesville dealers today is any indication the latest in puzzles beats the 14-15 all its prices. It is invented by Samuel Lloyd, "pigs in clover," and half a dozen others. He has recently copyrighted his latest invention, which he calls "blind luck," and which he pronounces to be the best of them all.

"Blind luck" has occupied the originator for eight years, and has passed through some hundred various forms before the present one was finally selected. Its name is a peculiarly happy one, and it is the most simple looking affair it is possible to imagine. There is nothing mathematical in its appearance. The game consists in placing half a dozen little sticks upon numbers from one to six, arranged upon a horseshoe design. The numbers have the appearance of the face of dice, there being four ones, and so on until four sixes are reached. The game is to try and make fifty-one or prevent your opponent from making it. Each player plays alternately.

The mystery in the game is to explain why it is that the more you look at it and study it, the greater is the certainty of your being beaten by one who plays haphazard and depends entirely upon his luck to win.

HE IS A FAMOUS HUMORIST.

W. G. Richards, of the New York Symphony Club.

Warren G. Richards, Boston's famous humorist, has been nine years before the public, appearing under the auspices of leading lecture associations, churches, societies, opera house managers, and called back as many as six times to them, with a record of one hundred nights in critical Boston, in proof of his worth. His humorous impersonations, recitations, mimicry and song, which for novelty, originality, variety and refinement have never been surpassed, stamp him as the leading monologue artist of the day. Many of his sketches have been written expressly for him and are presented by other artists. The public now says—days want fun, but demand that it shall be pure and wholesome—something for the minister, lawyer, doctor, business man, clerks, mechanics. In fact, all classes are made better and happier by humor that will banish dull care and send a ray of sunshine into the heart, to cause it to vibrate with joy, and in with Mr. Richards the people find the dispenser of happiness, as will be seen by a few of his many testimonials.

Mr. Richards is with the New York Symphony Club, and will appear at the Congregational church Monday evening, January 19.
